PLANNING DESKS

Major Fire Service Education Conference Comes to Lake Buena Vista, Florida

More than 1,500 fire fighters to arrive for advanced leadership training in a show of growth and strength

The International Association of Fire Fighters (IAFF) will host more than 1,500 professional fire fighter union leaders for four days of intense training and education on issues affecting the fire service, public safety and other important topics, including diversity and human relations.

The conference also features a pre-conference event to help participants plan a FIRE OPS 101, which exposes elected officials and community leaders to the risks and challenges involved in firefighting.

The success and popularity of this conference reflects the growing strength and influence of the IAFF, which represents more than 320,000 professional fire fighters and paramedics across the United States and Canada.

The Affiliate Leadership Training Summit/Human Relations Conference is an excellent backdrop for reporters to conduct live interviews with fire fighters, including from the Orlando area. The IAFF can provide interviews, access to live training, data and video. Contact Tim Burn at (202) 230-7167 for more information.
