TRANSITION

Racquel Segall

Racquel Segall has been the Occupational Health Specialist at the International Association of Fire Fighters for over four years. She has assisted the IAFF Health and Safety Department with research, technical assistance and advice to IAFF affiliates on health and safety problems, infectious diseases, questions and concerns. Segall has managed IAFF research projects focused on cancer, flame retardants, PFAS, decontamination efforts and cell towers. She has testified on the federal level against flame retardants in consumer products and assisted with writing testimonies against toxic chemicals on both the federal and state levels. Segall has also lead the development and organization of the IAFF and Firefighter Cancer Support Network (FCSN)'s Fire Fighter Cancer Awareness Month. She has a Bachelor of Science in Environmental Science and Policy from the University of Maryland-College Park and a Master's in Public Health focused in Environmental and Occupational Health from the University of Pittsburgh. She is currently studying for her Certificate in Industrial Hygiene (CIH).
